Form 990 - Organization's Mission

We save tropical plant diversity by exploring, explaining and conserving the world of tropical plants; fundamental to this task is inspiring a greater knowledge and love for plants and gardening so that all can enjoy the beauty and bounty of the tropical world.

Fairchild Tropical Botanic Garden is a unique scientific and cultural institution for the Miami metropolitan area, the United States, and the world. It is the major botanic garden in subtropical South Florida, delivering plant science information to a broad local audience. Its unique subtropical location, the cultural vibrancy of Miami, and the international linkages of its science programs, create an institution that draws strength from the local community and from throughout the tropical world. The Garden celebrates and continues the legacy of Dr. David Fairchild, the nation's foremost botanical explorer and passionate advocate for plants.

Fairchild's horticulture, science, education, and outreach programs seek to (1) understand plants and how they function; (2) maximize the value of plants to humankind, and (3) save plants for future generations.

Fairchild has been committed to botanical research and conservation throughout its history. Fairchild science is a powerful combination of tropical field exploration, high tech laboratory science, computational analysis, and cross disciplinary collaboration. A diverse team of staff, students, and volunteers work on a wide range of research and conservation projects within our region and throughout the world. Fairchild's team is constantly teaching and learning from visitors, members, students, volunteers and the community of scientists worldwide.

Current research and conservation projects include studies of orchid ecology and restoration, tropical fruit crop diversity, the evolution and classification of palms, restoration of South Florida and Caribbean ecosystems, the ecology of tropical forests in a changing climate, the evolution of plants on tropical islands, and interactions among birds, insects, and tropical plants. All of these projects have a high level of community engagement, including university faculty, K-12 and university students, and volunteers.

The Garden itself is an 83-acre living laboratory with rich representation of the global tropical flora. The living plant collection is a source of material for genetic, chemical, anatomical, morphological, horticultural, and physiological research. As one of South Florida's important remaining green spaces, the Garden is also a unique place to study ecological interactions among South Florida's birds, reptiles, insects and the natural and artificial landscape.

Education/Auxiliary - Community outreach, continuing education, school programs, interpretation & publications, volunteer & visitor services programs.

Fairchild is the region's leading source of botanical education, connecting the broader community with the world of plants and related topics in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM). Using plants as an integrating concept, we offer a diversity of award-winning programs for school-age students, credit and non-credit courses for university undergraduates and graduates, professional development for educators, and life-long learning opportunities for adults. These programs are the result of cooperative efforts, led by seasoned educators on staff and involving input from program volunteers, teachers, students, science and curriculum specialists, research and horticulture staff and dedicated community partnerships.

The award winning, interdisciplinary, environmental science competition, The Fairchild Challenge, is designed to engage students of diverse interests, abilities, talents, and backgrounds to explore the world of plants. Reaching over 125,000 students annually, the program has been recognized as a benchmark for exceptional STEM education and for Empowering PreK-12th grade students to become the next generation of Scientists and advocates for plants.

The Fairchild Challenge has become a model beyond South Florida, influencing programs nationally and internationally. In partnership with NASA, Fairchild provides South Florida middle and high school students an opportunity to conduct authentic botanical research in the classroom. Together, NASA and Fairchild are administering plant experiments within over 130 classrooms to determine which edible plants might be suitable for growth aboard spacecraft.

The Fairchild Explorer and Discovery programs engage more than 7,200 students from over 280 schools. The programs immerse young people in hands-on activities as they experience the science and beauty of Fairchild. The "Lifelong Learning Program" offers more than 2,000 participants, attending more than 200 classes, the opportunity to experience new and diverse concepts about the beauty and value of plants.

Since 2014, Fairchild has hosted BioTECH @ Richmond Heights 9-12, a public magnet high school that allows students to specialize in botany. The only program of its kind in the world, the school uses Fairchild as a venue for hands-on learning and independent research.

Fairchild is also a leading regional cultural institution and favorite visitor destination for both tourists and local residents. Events such as the International Mango Festival, the International Orchid, Festival, and the International Chocolate Festival include an education component with lectures, demonstrations, and classes. During FY16-17, there were more than 200,000 visitors to the Garden and close to 1,400 dedicated, energetic and talented volunteers supported Fairchild's programs by donating more than 70,000 hours of their time. Fairchild's state-of-the-art DiMare Science Village and Hsiao Tropical Plant Laboratories serve as a meeting place for many students, scholars and dignitaries.
