1. Expedition Discovery at Fairchild Garden

Things to do Miami

Looking for an educational activity this spring break? Liking sneaking greens into a smoothie, Fairchild Garden's Expedition Discovery is a fun, clever way to teach kids about nature. Families will embark on a self-guided tour through the garden and complete missions along the way—from the butterfly gardens and science labs to the rainforest. For each one completed, kids earn a collectible pin to add their expedition lanyard. The best part? The challenge is available every day the garden is open so there's no deadline on when to start.
