

The Scoop | Week of April 20

With the constant media attention to the environment, Earth Day has become big news during its 51-year history. The annual celebration of Mother Nature takes place every April 22, and this year brings a range of ways to contribute. Even if you don't have time to participate in a beach cleanup or attend a plant sale, it's as easy as shopping for a new pair of sneakers.

Plant People

The pandemic inspired many people to beautify their yards and try gardening. Whether you have a green thumb or not, botanical gardens' plant sales are great sources to learn about which specimens grow well here and other tips.

Fairchild Garden's online plant sale runs through April 25, while Mounts Botanical Garden's in-person Spring Plant Sale occurs April 24-25.
