

10 Actually Fun Things to Do in Miami This Weekend

If you like piña coladas...

Well, at least we made it past Independence Day before our first hurricane scare of 2021. One down, probably like 65 more to go. But we can still be thankful Elsa made her way through town before Swim Week, which comes back to South Beach for the first time since 2019. There are actually more shows open to regular folks than in past years, but if it's still not your jam, this weekend's got a new wine bar opening, a Daybreaker party with Tritonal, and pina coladas in a pineapple. All that and Sister Hazel highlight the best stuff going on in South Florida this weekend.

Take some mangoes off Fairchild's hands

Saturday, July 10 - Sunday, July 11

Fairchild Tropical Gardens

Anyone with a mango tree knows it's impossible to get rid of all your extra fruit in a single weekend. Now imagine you have over 500 varieties of mango trees, and you'll understand why Fairchild has turned its Mango Festival into a month-long event, running every weekend in July. This weekend's Mango Days of Summer bash features a marketplace with all varieties of mango-spiked food and drink from local vendors.

Cost: Admission runs $24.95 per person