MIAMI.- The Fairchild Tropical Botanical Garden , one of the main and most historic conservation and educational gardens in the world, welcomes cocoa lovers again to celebrate a new edition of the Chocolate Festival , this coming Saturday the 21st and Sunday the 22nd from January.

Promoting tastings of sweets, dishes, desserts and snacks prepared with cocoa from diverse geographical origins, the event that brings together experts, researchers and chocolate lovers invites you to enjoy an educational show full of flavour, live music, recreational activities, classes, and many games on the lawn.

A whole feast for the palate that brings together more than 10,000 people every day to celebrate the so-called 'delicacy of the gods', whose benefits elevate the mood, improve skin health, and exalt comprehensive well-being. For this reason, during the two-day event, you can enjoy the magic of this plant fused with wine and spirits that will reveal unique flavors. In addition, to promote recipes, new uses of cocoa in spas and relationship therapies, and culinary experiences for children.

"I have participated in the Chocolate Festival since its first edition, it is a very important event not only for cocoa lovers, but also for entrepreneurs. It is a magical event, it is very well organized, and returning is an honor because we see you there with immense love," María Alejandra Pérez, a Venezuelan chocolatier and founder of Románicos Chocolates in Coral Gables, told DIARIO LAS AMÉRICAS, which this year will surprise with its bars of more than 10 flavors, hot chocolate, among other surprises.
