WEEKEND GUIDES

August is upon us, friends. Although we survived the ungodly, record-setting, new-transplant-repelling heatwave that took up most of July, we've still got another month of summer to go. It's not all hot weather and thunderstorms during summer's final month, though. It brings plenty of good stuff like deep off-season discounts on fancy dinners and waterparks, baseball beer festivals, and free surfing lessons. August weekends promise to be packed with fun, so whether you're looking for live music, drag shows with donuts, or lasers set to Taylor Swift, South Florida has something you're gonna love on this list of all the fun things to do in Miami every weekend this month.

Wander through woods filled with dragons

Friday, August 18

Fairchild Tropical Gardens; $24.95 for adults, $14.96 for kids

Grab a map and a flashlight and wander through a tropical forest filled with dragons. That's what's happening from 6:30 to 9:30 pm at Fairchild, where the garden's paths will have ancient beasts around every turn, with a family bubble dance party and dragon-themed drinks, too.
